CSSI Reaffirms Ongoing Commitment to Microsoft's Insurance Value Chain Spring Conference an Opportunity to Showcase VUE Software alongside other IVC Vendors

Coconut Creek, Florida, 2/25/2008 — Computer Solutions and Software International, Inc. (CSSI), today announced their attendance at Microsoft's spring 2008 Financial Services Conference. The conference offered the opportunity for Independent software vendors in the financial services vertical to discuss Microsoft platform solutions and straightforward integration for best-of-breed vendors participating in Microsoft's Insurance Value Chain.

Microsoft established the IVC as a technology foundation for integrated partner applications for the insurance industry. This foundation is based on the Microsoft .NET Framework, XML Web services and industry standards such as the Agent-Company Organization for Research and Development (ACORD). Building directly upon IVC, Microsoft's experience Insurance initiative offers a comprehensive approach to resolving pressures facing the insurance industry and focuses on improving the overall experience of customers, employees and operations.

"It was great to be invited by Microsoft to the conference. We see a great deal of value in participating and working closely with other IVC partners to deliver the best client experience. I'm excited to see the continued growth and investment in the IVC, and I expect with the just announced independently run board, the IVC will become an even more important industry organization" said Joseph Westlake, Vice President of Corporate Strategy at CSSI.
