Stephen Bruno, President and CEO of CSSI asked to Participate in the Microsoft Leaders Forum-Windows in Financial Services Magazine Spring 2008 Issue

Coconut Creek, Florida, 2/28/2008 — Computer Solutions and Software International, Inc. (CSSI), today announced that Stephen Bruno was asked to participate in the Microsoft Leaders Forum – Windows in Financial Services Magazine Spring 2008 issue.

The Forum is entitled “Insurers: Taking on the Cutting Edge and Adding Value”, which will showcase insights and success stories from senior executives at ‘best in breed’ Microsoft IVC partners on how they enable their clients with solutions to gain a competitive advantage. Nadine Kjellberg, the Managing Editor, will provide the introduction, “The insurance industry has often been tagged as being too legacy-burdened to take advantage of new technology, but this is proving far from true. Insurance companies have embraced the latest technological advancements in mobility and elsewhere and have made more strides in streamlining the workflow process than many other sectors. This is critically important now as insurance companies need to add value to the customer experience while charging less than their competitors. Tapping into the Microsoft Insurance Value Chain has been a key strategy for firms to reduce costs and IT complexity and enable straight-through business processes. So what waits around the next bend and what are the critical next steps for insurers facing an increasingly competitive landscape?” The Forum will consist of a 380 word interview and talking points.

Windows in Financial Services Magazine reaches a select audience of 12,500 executives with bonus distribution at the ACORD LOMA Insurance Systems Forum, IASA Annual Conference, RIMS 2008 Annual Conference and Exhibition, TowerGroup’s Annual Conference, Boston and the CIO Forum Financial Services.
